Why learn to play Bridge?

With so many activities competing for your leisure time, why invest your energy into learning a game as complex as bridge?

Why bridge instead of computer games, poker, chess or golf?

Here are some of the reasons why millions of people around the world are hooked on this fascinating game:

Bridge will never bore you. The game can be exciting, challenging, frustrating and humbling, but it will never be boring. There are more than 750 trillion possible hands, so you'll see something new every time you play. It's actually a fast-paced game, too. Each hand takes just six to ten minutes to play before you move on to the next deal and a new challenge.

Bridge is fun. Of all the reasons to learn the game, the most important is that it's just fun to play. It offers the suspense of poker, the cerebral qualities of chess and the excitement of athletic sports, all in a sociable setting where you're a participant, not just a spectator. Every session allows you to test yourself and experience the feeling of accomplishment when you find a successful bid or line of play.

Bridge stimulates the brain. Bridge is one of the best ways to practice the "use-it-or-lose-it" advice for maintaining mental sharpness in older age. Research has shown that regular bridge playing improves reasoning skills and long- and short-term memory. You'll feel the neurons firing not only while you play, but also long after. Many players say that hours after a bridge game, they still feel mentally alert and energized, similar to the "high" that long-distance runners experience after a race.

Bridge exercises both sides of your brain. Bridge is one of the few games that stimulates both the left and right sides of your brain. Every time you play, you use and develop logical thinking, inferential analysis, problem solving skills, sequencing, visualization, lateral thinking, long and short-term memory, observation and psychology. It's a unique type of mental workout that is both relaxing and invigorating, and that can't be duplicated by other games or work-related activities.

Bridge can improve your physical health. Research has shown that a game of bridge can even boost your immune system. By stimulating the brain cortex, bridge-playing activity produces higher numbers of white blood cells that fight disease. It is an immunity booster! Also, other studies have found and documented that people who play bridge regularly are 2½ times less likely to develop Alzheimer's disease or dementia.

Bridge is social. A game of bridge involves communication and cooperation with your partner and interaction with your opponents. There's a special camaraderie among bridge players that develops from the social setting and the game's emphasis on teamwork, ethics and sportsmanship. And if you play duplicate bridge, you can find new friends and partners at more than 3300 bridge clubs throughout North America.

Bridge will take you all over the world. Everyday, every week, there is a bridge event happening somewhere in the world. Whether it be on a cruise ship that is hosting a bridge week, a hotel in Bermuda hosting an annual bridge event or a club in Saint-Tropez hosting a daily game. Bridge clubs exist EVERYWHERE, just like golf courses...and once you learn how to play, you are welcome everywhere!

Bridge is a bargain. All you need for a bridge game is a deck of cards and three other people. You don't have to leave your home or you can join in a game at your local duplicate club where you'll enjoy a three-hour session of bridge for less than the cost of a movie.

Bridge can be a lifelong pursuit. It takes only rudimentary knowledge to begin playing and enjoying bridge, but as any player will tell you, this is not a game for those who demand instant gratification. Learning to play well takes time and effort, and the game is impossible to master. But that's precisely why bridge is so popular, and why it's called "the game for a lifetime". No matter how many years you play, you'll always find new challenges, and the learning process will never end. Bridge also caters to all physical conditions and disabilities, so players can actively pursue their pastime throughout their entire lives.

That's what keeps people coming back to the bridge table, and it's why bridge will always be the world's most popular card game.
